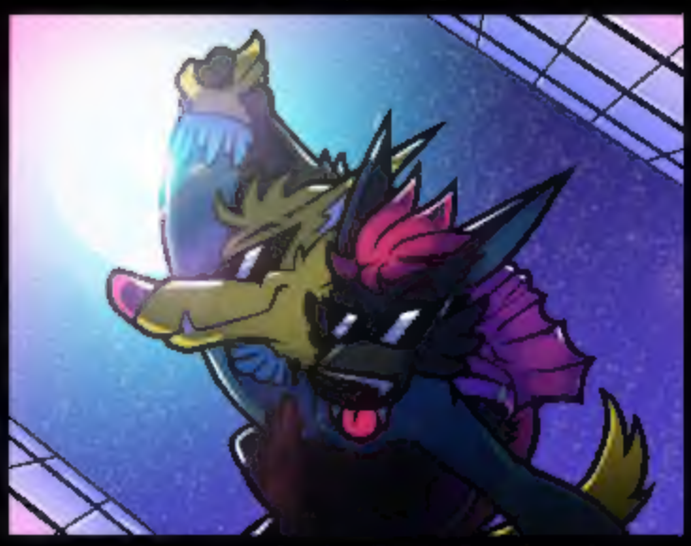
InkBoil

Reel 3: Faux

Trudy's story was the first Acres comic you followed?

Kinda. He had a couple stinkers before that. Its tone ended up way darker than his later works, stopping on such a bummer when he got bored. Still, I loved it! I even printed it out to pretend it was a real comic book.

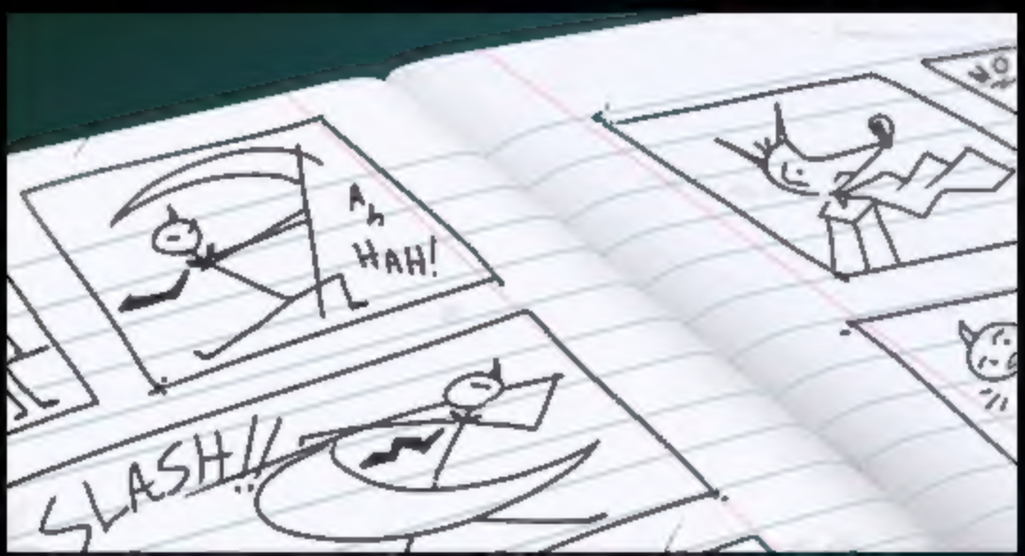
So it was your favorite?



Naw but it's hard to choose one. I was a total sucker for all the cartoon superhero escapism. Plus it was nice having an artist lean into so many of the themes he did.

I don't quite get what you mean but sounds like his work meant a lot!

Yeah! Always wanted to get into action toons myself and doodled stick figure fights all the time. I bet if I stuck with it I'd be making little toons on the net like Acres did.



And now you're stuck in a city filled with his toons!

Doesn't feel like quite the vacation.

I dunno. If being stuck here means I get to deal with THIS all the time, well. . .

WAIT you're talking about the pancakes!

Do we have time for this?

Hey, Parmesan insisted I get the big breakfast!

"No knight of mine fights on an empty stomach!"

Nice of him to treat but you should hurry it~

Woah!

I didn't mean to LITERALLY inhale it!

All this huffing and puffing, is that really the power set of a wolf?

How'd you know you could do that?

I swear Blot, we're gonna have to get you watching some old shorts.

It's basic cartoon stuff!

Alright, sounds like a plan!

Uh, Toma, what's the plan?

Step 1: I punch that stupid crown off of Faux's stupid head.

Step 2: Haven't thought that far.

InkBolt @Kaz_Jester

Color by @Queso_Ok